'The Strangers'

If He Votes He Loses His 'Rights'

(This is the tenth chapter of "The Strangers," a searching report on the plight of B.C.'s native Indians)

By G. E. MORTIMORE

Only a handful of Canada's 160,000 native Indians have the federal vote. No registered Indians have the right to purchase wine, beer or spirits by the bottle.

Some Indians don't want these privileges, and others don't care.

Substantial numbers—especially among the 35,000 Indians of British Columbia—are anxious to get both liquor and the vote, but hang back because the government has bobby-trapped the ballot with conditions that deprive the reserve Indian of his "rights."

For many an Indian, possession of reserve lands, freedom from land and income tax while on the reserve, government help and guidance, and the intangible sense of "belonging" to his race are the only security he knows.

No Legal Barrier

Indians living on the reserve can vote only by giving up their tax exemptions. To most Indians, losing these privileges, the most important of all that they hold, amounts nearly enough to losing Indian status.

There is no legal barrier to stop any Indian from going to live off the reserve whenever he likes. Indians living off the reserve—who are already liable to both income tax and property tax—can register and vote. I know several Indians living off the reserve who vote regularly without having signed any waiver of tax privileges. They retain their Indian status, and could go back to the reserve at any time.

Many other have the idea that if they vote they will lose their tax privileges automatically. Few are willing to go away from the reserve especially to gain the vote. The reserve is their home, and they feel that they are entitled to live there.

The fourth way that an Indian can gain the federal vote and the only way he can gain full liquor privileges, is by the formal process known as "enfranchisement."

Enfranchisement involves much more than gaining the right to mark a ballot and purchase a bottle. It means losing a number of tangible benefits, leaving the spiritual comfort of Indian status forever, and travelling to a strange world in which there are few landmarks.

Some Indians, even though living on the reserve, have already ventured into the new world, made friends in it, and feel at ease there. But for the majority, it is a frightening journey.

'If We're in Trouble'

"If we're in trouble do the Indian Department have any more concern with us, or help us?" an Indian of Metlakatla village near Prince Rupert, B.C., asked wistfully, when he and fellow members of the band were debating whether or not to become enfranchised en masse.

The answer was "No." While people can have only a faint idea what the answer means to an Indian, who has grown up with the belief that in time of crisis he has a protector to lean on—not someone doling out charity, but someone who owes the Indian a debt.

"Who will pay the (doctor's) bills?" a Metlakatla Indian asked.

"You will be in the same category as a dependent white man," a government official replied. "If you are not able to

Parted from Fathers

Others described it as being something like "being parted from a harsh father, or like being discharged from the army after years of service—but not quite the same as either of those; a sensation all its own."

An Indian woman married to a non-Indian is enfranchised almost automatically. But any other Indian has to work for his or her enfranchisement.

He must prove that he has lived off the reserve for some time, has a steady income, and is capable of "discharging the duties and responsibilities" of his new status.

The application goes before the band council for comment. The minister of citizenship and immigration, through his representative, the Indian superintendent in charge of the agency, says "Yes" or "No."

In making his decision, the superintendent often takes into account morals and—sometimes—drinking habits. The Canadian-born white, the British newcomer and even the alien immigrant do not have to undergo the same kind of scrutiny.

Once enfranchised, the Indian checks out of his band, along with his wife and children, each

DEGREE-GRANTING COLLEGE AUTHORIZED FOR VICTORIA

Mass Effort Needed

By HARRY YOUNG

Any University of British Columbia restraint on the development of Victoria College as a full-fledged liberal arts college now appears to have been removed.

Dr. Harry Hickman, principal of Victoria College, said yesterday that the UBC faculty had agreed that any approved third and fourth-year courses offered at Victoria College would be recognized as credits leading to the UBC degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science and Bachelor of Education.

"The only restriction is that we have to show that we have the faculty and the student body to make these third and fourth-year courses practicable," said Dr. Hickman.

WAY NOW OPEN
The principal added that in the past UBC had not thwarted any expansion of the courses offered by Victoria College, but the latest positive decision of the UBC faculty indicated clearly that the way was now open for the establishment of a liberal arts college in this city.

This session, UBC has approved the introduction of six courses at Victoria College beyond the second-year level.

BUILDINGS NEEDED
Dr. Hickman said that the college would move ahead just as soon as the accommodation facilities became available through the provision of new buildings.

The assurance that UBC will not stand in the way represents an important step towards the development of a university for Victoria.

It opens the way for a mass community effort to get things going and it is expected that the Victoria Chamber of Commerce university sub-committee will immediately be spurred into new efforts.

CAMPUS QUESTION

The main problem is that the question of campus remains a matter of controversy. All Victoria College plans call for the retention of the present site, while the chamber sub-committee, backed by municipal and town planning authorities, are in favor of the development of a new campus at Gordon Head.

This, however, is a long-term matter and the public's main interest will be the news that in the distant future it may be possible for Island youngsters to take their arts, science and education degrees without leaving the Island.

Captain Ron Newall, chairman of the chamber sub-committee, said a meeting had been called for Sept. 25 to discuss the new situation.

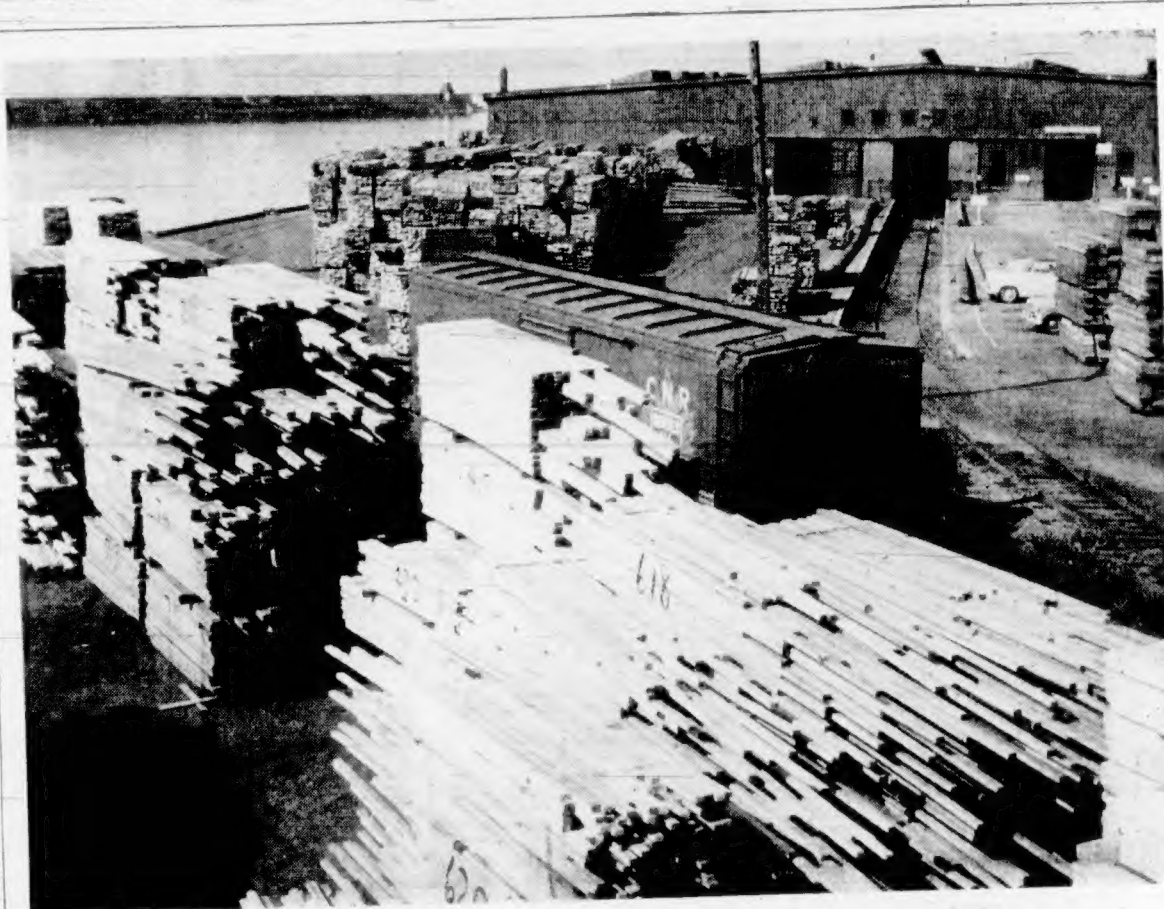

"Our aim primarily is to get a four-year liberal arts course going in Victoria, and anything that can be done to expedite this will have our support," he said.

Eighteen Halifax Firemen Collapse

$23,000,000 Navy Ship Swept by Fierce Fire

HALIFAX (CPI)—A hole was chopped in the bow of a $23,000,000 destroyer escort Friday to quell a fire which threatened to sweep the nearly-completed vessel.

At least 18 firemen were felled by fumes trying to reach the core of the fire which broke out in the 2,900-ton Chaudiere, still being fitted out by Halifax Shipyards Limited.

Not until hoses had poured a deluge of water through the slash on the vessel's bow was the fire controlled. Naval officials were still unable to estimate extent of the damage.

THREE TO HOSPITAL

Three firemen were sent to hospital with smoke poisoning but none was reported in serious condition. The others were revived by two doctors at the scene.

The fire, which turned into a raging inferno for a time, broke out in or near a refrigerating unit in a forward room which was almost inaccessible to firemen.

City police and RCMP officials said there was no suspicion of sabotage.

PUMPING OUT WATER

Jack Lezie, general manager of the shipyard, said a 10-inch hole was cut in the ship's hull near the bow and "tens of thousands of gallons" were hosed into the Chaudiere, tied up at a dock in Halifax harbor. The 366-foot vessel was reported to be "down considerably at the bows," but pumping operations to clear out the water had begun.

Fire Chief Fred MacGillivray of Halifax, who was recalled from his holidays, said 140 men fought the outbreak.

The navy has declined comment on the fire.

'Major Step Forward'

Tories Unveil Bill of Rights

OTTAWA (CPI)—The government's new Canadian bill of rights was unveiled in the Commons Friday. The document carefully stepping around provincially-claimed powers, would bar the federal authority from infringing on "human rights and fundamental freedoms."

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, admitting that "it will not do everything" called it "a major step forward" in curbing the human tendencies of national governments to take short-cuts in ruling the people.

Spokesmen for opposition parties, though wishing the government well, voiced some reservations about the effectiveness of the three-page measure in accomplishing the purpose of protecting the liberties of Canadians.

Opposition Leader, Pearson questioned whether the bill is really necessary in a country which, he said, stands in the forefront in respecting individual rights.

CCF-House leader Hazen Argue said his party would have liked a bill of rights in broader terms, and embedded constitutionally into the British North America Act. He specifically mentioned one omission—the right to work.

Both Mr. Pearson and Mr. Argue urged that the bill be given a thorough examination next session by a parliamentary committee. Both hinted their parties may seek changes in it.

The rights, which the bill declares "have always existed and shall continue to exist" in Canada, are listed as:

1. The right of the individual to life, liberty, security of the person and enjoyment of property, and the rights not to be deprived thereof except by due process of law.

NO DISCRIMINATION

2. The right of the individual to protection of the law without discrimination by reason of race, national origin, color, religion or sex.

3. Freedom of religion.

4. Freedom of speech.

5. Freedom of assembly and association.

6. Freedom of the press.

EXAMINE BILL

The bill also provides that the minister of justice shall examine every bill presented in the Commons and every cabinet order-in-council to ensure it does not run contrary to the bill of rights.

Hundreds Visit Frigates

Hundreds of Victorians visited Japanese frigates at HMC Dockyard yesterday. The 1,700-ton Harukaze and Uranami were to sail at 9 a.m. today after paying centennial year visit. Displaying one of lanterns strung over ships' decks is CPO Yasayoshi Tsukahara, to visitor Mrs. Diane Wood, Victoria.

Londoners Watch Storm of Century

LONDON (Reuters)—Three thousand lightning flashes lit up London's skyline Friday night in what weather experts described as "probably one of the most spectacular storms of the century."

During a two-hour non-stop display, lightning flashes stabbed every corner of the capital. Some lasted five seconds and one zig-zagged out into about 100 joint flashes.

A meteorological station at suburban Harrow recorded the flashes that burned the horizon into a continuous flickering mass of electricity.

The storm carved a trail of damage across London and southern England. It ended a day of sweltering humidity that reached 70 per cent in a 79-degree temperature—almost double the normal humidity reading for such a temperature.

Many houses were hit by lightning, torrential rain turned roads into rivers, marmoring motorists and flooding homes.

'You Can't Really Force Courtesy' On Pedestrians

Provincial officials said yesterday that pedestrians tend to "abuse" regulations and tie up traffic because they know they have the right of way by law.

But they took exception to remarks by Ontario's deputy minister of transport D. J. Col lins, who said that the B.C. system of giving pedestrians the right of way at all intersections has caused more accidents than it prevented.

LEGISLATE COURTESY

"Actually what we've tried to do is legislate courtesy and you can't really do it," said one official. "In giving the pedestrians the right of way you're only writing down a bit of common sense."

But by putting this in writing, he said, "pedestrians tend to abuse traffic regulations and tie up traffic in cities."

Some pedestrians are so con

Swedish Trains Crash, Five Die

FALUN, Sweden (AP)—A local train carrying school children Friday crashed into a new engine on a test run between this central Swedish mining town and the tourist resort of Rattvik.

At least five persons were killed and 13 injured, the Swedish State Railways announced Friday night.

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons public accounts commit tee charged Friday there was an "unfortunate" choice of site in constructing the federal printing bureau and that the taxpayers' money was not adequately protected.

It was learned the report, hammered out behind closed doors, was approved on a vote of 19-4, with the four Liberals present dissenting and CCF member Harold Winch of Vancouver East supporting the Conservatives in the majority.

CRITICISM UNEASED

Amendments introduced by J. W. Pickersgill (L. Bonaville-Twillington) to ease the committee's criticism of the former Liberal administration were voted down, informant said.

"Evidence given to your committee clearly indicates that regardless of the suitability of the site from the town-planning point of view, it was an unfortunate selection," the report said.

In the erection of future "monumental edifices" to embellish the national capital, no projects should be erected until plans are sufficiently developed to permit reasonable approximations of cost to be given to the House of Commons when the estimates first include an item to provide for construction," the report suggested.

Don't Litter Mayor's Plea

MAYOR Percy Scourrah called yesterday for greater public cooperation in keeping city streets and parks free of litter.

"Our city is not as bad as some places," he said, "but there is certainly room for improvement. It definitely would be appreciated if people would use the trash cans provided, and if children would not drop candy bar wrappers and that kind of stuff in the streets."

franchise were not always noble.

Many Indians become enfranchised before going to live in the United States, on the mistaken theory that Indians would have to be "full citizens" of Canada before they could become citizens of the United States.

Numbers of Indians become enfranchised merely to get liquor. Some of them set up in business as bootleggers. There have been cases (The Hawthorn report says) in which superintendents have recommended enfranchisement for trouble-makers, merely to get them off the hands of the Indian Affairs branch.

FIVE OR TEN

The Hawthorn report estimated that not more than five or 10 Indian men a year in B.C. sought enfranchisement because they had found a place in the non-Indian world and wanted to break with Indian life.

Obituaries

Sailor for 51 Years, Herbert Jones Dies

A sailor since the days of sailing ships, Herbert L. Jones, 81, was found dead in his home at 3130 Kingsley, Monday.

Born in Engham, Mr. Jones came to Canada with his parents and settled in Haney, B.C., later moving to Victoria.

At the age of 14 he joined the crew of the Empress of India, heading for the Orient.

He left the sea briefly to join the Klondike gold rush of 1898 and then he started to work with the CPR tugboats. From the 1920s to about 1942 he served as mate on CPR tugs in B.C. waters.

He was a life member of the Merchant Service Guild.

Surviving are a sister and niece in Vancouver. Funeral arrangements are in charge of Thomson's funeral home.

The name of the Williams Lake agency, one of the largest in British Columbia, was left out by mistake from the list of Indian agencies in yesterday's chapter of "The Strangers."

The controversial Section 112 of the Indian Act gives the government the right to force enfranchisement. The right has not been used, but all Indian leaders feel that it is a danger, and should be cancelled.

J. W. Pickersgill, minister of citizenship and immigration in the last Liberal cabinet, gave assurance that Section 112 would never be used while he was in office. Later — after his government had been defeated — he suggested that thought might be given to the repeal of Section 112. He urged that the Conservative government also promise in the mean-while that the section would not be used.

Mr. Pickersgill's remarks did something to restore his prestige in the eyes of the politically-conscious Indians, many of whom considered (perhaps unjustly) that his handling of the Hobbema expulsion affair in Alberta had been brusque and inhuman.

The Conservatives, so far, have not taken up his challenge to forswear Section 112.

The group method of enfranchisement, sanctioned by the act, has shown even poorer results than the individual method.

The people of Metlakatla, near Prince Rupert, seemed about to make history as the first B.C. Indian band to become enfranchised as a group.

HOMES, GARDENS

They were going to organize as a municipality, keep some of their reserve for homes and gardens, and sell the rest. Part of the proceeds from land sales would have been divided among the band; the remainder would have financed the new municipality.

When the plan was broached, the people of Metlakatla hoped to gain through enfranchisement old age pensions, the right to send their children to provincial schools, the provincial and federal vote and the right to enter beer parlors and to buy and take home liquor.

All of these except the right to buy and take home liquor and the federal vote came to them without enfranchisement. The zeal for enfranchisement waned. Opponents of the plan grew bolder.

The B.C. government, noted since colonial days for hard-fisted dealings over Indian land, helped kill the enfranchisement plan.

An official of the municipal affairs branch, who played a part in the negotiations, told me the province had been ready to give "favorable consideration" to Metlakatla's incorporation as a municipality.

But the province had the right to take over the lands of an Indian band that became extinct, and provincial legal advisers threw out open hints that a band that became enfranchised might fit in this category. Therefore all unoccupied lands of the band would become provincial property.

The suggestion helped scare away the supporters of enfranchisement, and caused the Indian affairs branch to tread more warily. In 1944, Metlakatla voters had favored enfranchisement, 20 to 1. Negotiations bogged down for some time. Twelve years later, when the vote was taken again, the "yes" votes were just under the legally required 50 per cent. The story of the Metlakatla enfranchisement attempt is more complex than the brief outline above indicates, but the outline contains the elements of it.

NOT REALLY READY

"I don't think many of the people are really ready for enfranchisement," Alvin Leask, Metlakatla chief councillor, told me when I visited the village recently. "There were quite a few near-destitute in the village. In former times they were getting only the equivalent of $7 a month relief in groceries, from the Indian department. What they really wanted was a pension. The old people got that, without being enfranchised. "There's a band trust fund. A lot of people thought there would be a large amount to be divided. When they found out there would only be about $300 each, they lost interest.

No other B.C. band has shown an interest in group enfranchisement. The Michel band in Alberta was recently enfranchised—the second band of major size to take the step since the Wyandottis of Anderson, Ontario, moved out from under the shelter of the Indian Act in 1881.

$100,000 IN CHEQUES

The 121 members of the Michel band received cheques totalling $100,000, or $829 each, when the band funds were distributed. There will be more money when surplus band lands are sold.

Trouble for You, Gibson Sloan Warns Witness

Judgments Made
Without Evidence
Lumberman Says

VANCOUVER (CP)—Words flew thick and fast here Friday as millionaire lumberman Gordon Gibson clashed with government forestry adviser Gordon Sloan at a hearing on the issuance of timber licences.

Mr. Sloan became angered by Mr. Gibson's attempts to bring testimony from the Sommers bribery-conspiracy trial into the hearing, held in the Appeal Court chamber. He spoke low and rapidly.

ORDER YOU OUT
—At one point Mr. Sloan said to Mr. Gibson: "Do you want me to order you out of the witness box?"

Mr. Sloan is conducting a hearing into allegations that holders of tree farm licences—formerly forest management licences—have an unfair advantage over independent bidders in bidding for timber at public auction.

Mr. Gibson said evidence of "important men" at the Sommers trial proved that tree farm holders did have an unfair advantage in bidding on timber sales.

ORCHARD TO BE CALLED
—As a result of Mr. Gibson's appearance—he was called as a last-minute witness—retired chief forester C. D. Orchard will be called before the commission.

Mr. Sloan turned down an application by Mr. Gibson to have lawyer Walter Owen, counsel for B.C. Forest Products, called.

He told Mr. Gibson he could send newspaper clippings which he considered could be applicable in the management licence hearing.

TOOK STAND
As Mr. Gibson took the stand Friday Mr. Sloan said he had the appellant's letter asking that Sommers' trial evidence be placed before the inquiry.

Mr. Gibson's letter said he had been informed the evidence was sub judice.

"What possible justification do you have in making these statements?" Mr. Sloan asked.

Mr. Sloan questioned whether any matters in the Sommers case came within the scope of his inquiry.

"Are you giving me permission to go ahead and give the evidence?" asked Mr. Gibson.

FOR THREE YEARS
"For almost three years I have been trying to tell you what I wanted to tell you. This has come out in evidence at the Sommers trial."

"You are going ahead and making judgments without hearing half the evidence," Mr. Gibson told the former judge.

Mr. Sloan interrupted: "I know you are against forest management licences, and you take every opportunity you get to put your views before the public."

MORE HEATED
—As the argument continued and became more heated Mr. Sloan said: "You know you are getting very close to a situation I won't permit. You are getting very close to contempt—don't start that here. I can be driven just so far and I am not going to have it."

Later he said: "You, Gibson, and I are going to have a little trouble and you are going to be on the receiving end."

Mr. Gibson apologized. He suggested that probably he should obtain legal counsel. Mr. Sloan advised him to follow that procedure.

Careful on Quemoy Senator Tells Ike

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Mike Mansfield urged yesterday that President Eisenhower consult Congress through its leaders before being "carried away" in a decision to defend the Chinese islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

The senator said that defence of the Nationalist-held islands would be a matter of "face-saving, prestige and psychology" rather than military importance.

'Don't Air-Attack Quemoy'

Mainland Bombing U.S. Threat to China

WASHINGTON (AP)—A chief defence ministry spokesman said Chinese Communist headquarters said, "I am sure we can solve ... without out being bombed almost immediately" the current campaign by the Chinese Reds to seal off the Quemoy Island group.

But he admitted that the supply line to these islands was "threatened" and "there is a limit beyond which we alone will not be able to solve the problem."

This authority strongly hinted that Chinese Nationalist planes, not American, would carry out any such retaliatory raids as a defensive measure to protect the Quemoy garrison.

U.S. fighters and bombers would join if needed, but only after President Eisenhower ordered such action as essential to defend "Formosa" against later Red Chinese invasion.

There are mounting signs that Eisenhower would order U.S. forces into action to help the Nationalists' beat off any Chinese Communist effort to seize Quemoy, only eight miles from the China mainland.

TAIPEI (CP)—Nationalist Chinese authorities claimed Friday night to be hopeful that they can counter the Communists' tightening blockade on the offshore islands without outside aid, but indicated American help might be needed should the situation worsen.

The Root of the Matter

HOW far the Peiping government may be bluffing in its current attacks on the Quemoy Islands one does not know. For its part the Red Chinese regime may not know how far the American attitude towards its defence is a bluff or otherwise. There has been an "if" about the extent of the U.S. protective mantle in the Far East, which covers Formosa but only by implication might include the Quemoy Islands. It is this uncertainty that perhaps induces the Peiping government to see how far it can press militant action. The danger of course is that a dual bluff could result in one step too far by either side, and invite another Korea.

The warning by Sir John Slessor, recently retired RAF chief, that the Quemoy Islands are indefensible and are certainly not worth the risk of a general war is worth heeding. With memories of the Hong Kong debacle of 1941 in mind some people will conclude this port is not either. So often the West seems to be lodged in indefensible positions. There can be no plant surrender to Red China threats, but prestige cannot be built on weakness. The seed of contention in the Far East is not possession of the Quemoy Islands, which are merely symbolical, but American support of Chiang Kai-shek and non-recognition of the Peiping government.

There is every ground for believing that were Formosa neutralized and Red China given recognition at the UN much of the present menacing situation would be resolved. There can be little hope of Chinese nationalists regaining power on the Chinese mainland. So long as U.S. support enables Formosa to present this fiction so long will Peiping regard it as a threat to its security. It is also strained to assume that Nationalist delegates representing a small rump speak for the Chinese at the UN, when 600,000,000 Chinese are under the de facto control of the Peiping government and likely to remain so.

It is not a matter of morality, but of facing reality. The Communist government at Peiping is the government of China, just as the Communist government of Moscow is the government of the Soviet Union. There is no difference. All other Western nations would recognize Red China tomorrow if the U.S. would agree. The latter has memories of Korea which have political implications, but in essence this means that a settlement in the Far East rests on the internal politics of the United States. Other Western states could not afford to be dragged into war on this account.

Formosa could be neutralized by the UN if necessary to remove it as a thorn in the flesh. In all probability Red China would accept such a solution if it were allowed entry into the comity of official international relations. It does not make sense to keep Peiping beyond the pale, thus embittering Chinese feelings and causing a state of ferment in the Far East which threatens the peace of the whole world.

Privileges Abused

IT would be interesting to know where Deputy Transport Minister Collins of Ontario obtained the information on which he based his statement that British Columbia's pedestrian crossing system causes rather than prevents accidents. He would not find confirmation in Victoria, where accidents involving pedestrians at intersections are rare.

Several years back the pedestrian figuratively took his life in his hands when he stepped off the curb, even at a crosswalk. His life expectancy has jumped amazingly in recent years; and it all dates back to the introduction of the system of granting pedestrians right of way at intersections. It took a good deal of time and many prosecutions to bring this improvement about; but today even the most intransigent pedestrian must admit that in the designated crosswalks at least motorists in general show him the utmost courtesy and consideration. In this respect—though regrettably not in many others—Victoria's traffic record has changed from very bad to extremely good.

That is not say that the system works perfectly; but the fault lies now with the drivers. Since they acquired this mastery of the situation at intersections a great many pedestrians have also acquired an arrogance and selfishness which used to be attributed to motorists. They display a lack of consideration calculated to reduce law-abiding drivers to a state of frenzy. At intersections, especially in downtown Victoria, for every act of courtesy by a driver there must be a thousand by pedestrians.

For this reason rather than the one he quoted, Mr. Collins may be right in his contention that the system here is not an unqualified success. If the privileges they now enjoy were withdrawn, Victoria's pedestrians would have only themselves to blame.

Succession Duties

THE brief tiff between a predominantly Progressive Conservative Commons and a Liberal filled Senate over changes in Canadian succession duties ended shortly before prorogation this week by the withdrawal of Senate objections to the new estates tax measure. The new act will provide a number of important changes in succession duty matters. The basic exemption for a widow inheriting moves up to $60,000, with certain further allowances for surviving minor children.

The initial exemption for all estates probated also moves up from what it was, although until the certified bill is printed details cannot be given at present. As initially proposed by the government, a basic exemption of $35,000 was suggested, although in discussion since there has been mention of a $40,000 limit before main death duties apply.

The new measure, which will repeal the existing inheritance regulations, goes part of the way towards dealing with estates as estates, and not chiefly as forms of bequests to beneficiaries. Close relative exemptions on a sharply graduated scale are included in the new measure, but taxation is to be transferred to the estate itself and this is the principal change in the law. Because the new enactment will affect individuals, trusts and a wide section of Canada's business structure, the terms of the ratified bill will be awaited with interest.

Interpreting the News

Kidding or Cod, Ask Skippers

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

THE Royal Navy's uncomfortable role of a Goliath refusing to be pushed around by an Icelandic David in the Atlantic fishing grounds is being watched by most Britons with amusement tinged with embarrassment.

The practice of repelling boarders by dousing them with fire hoses and then warning them with cups of cocoa is unlikely to call for an early revision of the naval textbooks outlining the tactics that won the day at Trafalgar, Jutland and the River Plate. For the moment, the world of comic opera has taken over.

Official exchanges between the British and Icelandic governments continue to deal with the situation with appropriate solemnity. Dispatches from Reykjavik may indicate that Iceland takes a grave view of the hostilities.

But in Britain, where the dispute over Iceland's newly proclaimed 12-mile territorial limit had grieved many observers with thoughts of possible rifts in the NATO Alliance, the shift from bellicose communications to a type of warfare resembling nautical cricket provides an irresistible break in the tension.

London's newspapers, almost without exception, are offering play-by-play reports from correspondents aboard the trawlers or naval escort vessels or on aircraft skimming close to the battle area. Their accounts carry the strong implication that things will blow over any day now.

In Iceland, where leftist elements are attempting to build up the affair into a full-scale ideological dispute, the broken windows in the British Embassy indicate that everyone isn't taking a similarly light-hearted view. But the government's restraint reflects a desire to leave the way open for compromise.

If the Icelanders were on shaky ground in their unilateral extension to 12 miles of their previous four-mile territorial limit, their supporting argument that shallow-water operations threaten to deplete their fishing grounds is worthy of investigation.

British trawlersmen, faced with the expensive alternative of modernizing their fleet with vessels capable of fishing in deeper waters, are strongly opposed to any move that would bar them from their traditional fishing grounds. But the government, while refusing to recognize the 12-mile limit, has repeatedly expressed its willingness to talk over the problem of fish conservation with the Icelanders.

Both problems were discussed at length earlier this summer at a United Nations conference in which Canada led an unsuccessful campaign for an international agreement on wider territorial limits. The United States joined Britain and other Western European countries in opposing the move.

Among the parties most anxious to see the problem shifted back from gunboat crews to international experts are the British trawler captains. They're beginning to complain that all these naval operations are playing hob with the fishing.

"Very simple: we won't recognize their bombs"

The Iceland Rift

U.S. Involved As Well

By J. G. HAYDEN, from Washington

AS seems inevitable whenever a trouble breaks out anywhere around the world these days, the United States is involved in the threatened warfare between Great Britain and Iceland over fishing rights, second only to those two principals.

In accordance with a treaty ratified in 1951, the U.S. has 4,000 troops guarding and operating the Keflavik air base, built at large U.S. expense after President Roosevelt replaced the British in occupation of Iceland early in the Second World War.

In 1956, after the Icelandic parliament voted to order U.S. evacuation of the country, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, former chairman of the U.S. chiefs of staff, told a Senate committee that Keflavik was "one of our most strategic air bases from which we might launch retaliatory attacks" or intercept an attack on the western hemisphere.

In December, 1956, the Iceland government withdrew its request for U.S. military withdrawal, coincident with rejection by President Eisenhower of a tariff commission recommendation that U.S. duties on imported ground fillets be raised.

Iceland's excuse for permitting American troops to remain on its soil was that the Russian professions of "peaceful policy" after the death of Stalin had been disproved by the invasion of Hungary.

But Lee and Russia have been snuggling up since then. In 1957 a three-year trade agreement was announced whereby the Soviet Union stepped up its purchase of Iceland's fish in exchange for Russian fuel oil, lubricants and grain. And only last month Ludvig Josefsson, Iceland's minister of commerce and a Communist, returned from Moscow with announcement of a $3,000,000 grant of Russian credits for the purchase of fishing vessels in East Germany.

The argument between Iceland and Great Britain has been going on for many years. Fishing is Iceland's main industry, accounting for 97 per cent of total exports. But the British food supply is heavily dependent on trawlers sailing out of Hull and Grimsby and greatly partial to waters close to Iceland.

When Iceland in 1952 stretched its claim to sovereignty at sea from three to four miles, Britain countered by denying permission to Icelandic trawlers to dock in British ports, and British fish markets joined in a boycott of fish caught by the Icelanders.

Under the auspices of the Organization of European Economic Cooperation (OEEC) an agreement was reached in November, 1956, by which Britain withdrew its bans against landing of Icelandic trawlers in its ports, with the effect of tacitly accepting the four-mile limit. The Icelanders contend, however, that British trawlers always have evaded even a three-mile limit and they have done so increasingly in recent months.

The controversy heightened after a United Nations conference on laws of the sea early this year failed to settle the fishing question.

Since Iceland's whole navy is said to consist of six small coast guard vessels, it can hardly expect to cope with Royal Navy gunboats moved in to protect British trawlers up to four miles off the Icelandic coast. What the Icelanders do count on no doubt is that the United States and other NATO countries will put heavy pressure on Britain to somehow ease the situation.

Reports from Ottawa

WITHOUT shadow of doubt, this parliamentary session has set some sort of record for the shortest, quickest, cheapest bus, so members of the public accounts committee could look over the controversial $16,000,000 plant of the National Printing Bureau.

Moreover, this junket was completed without benefit of a single martini to make the labors of the fact-finders less onerous. This alone would put this junket in a class by itself—accidentally, a class which is not likely to become overcrowded.

Parliamentary junketing at public expense was a relatively rare phenomenon under the ancient regime. Grit back benchers were well trained over two decades to know their lowly stations in public life, and to appreciate that junketing was the prerogative of their political betters. Thus the names of those who went continent hopping at public expense might well be a list of the principal speakers at a Liberal convention. For example: Louis St. Laurent, Douglas Abbott, Jimmy Sinclair, Bob Winters, Lester Pearson, Paul Martin, Brooke Claxton, Gaspard Fauteux, C. D. Howe, George Prud'homme, Wishart Robertson. Your ordinary Liberal back bench was lucky to get a few weeks at the UN Assembly in New York, losing money at niggardly living expense rates.

But these brash young Tory MPs aren't the parliamentary eiphers that many of their Liberal predecessors were. Nearly half of the Conservative new boys are between 30 and 40. They're keen, they're eager, they're expecting to have a hand in shaping the nation's course for a good many years to come. And they want to learn by first-hand observation about the problems they will have to face, about the people and the regions on whose behalf they will have to legislate.

More than one of them has commented to me, "The only way we can get the background to do our jobs properly is to get out of Ottawa and see for ourselves."

During the current session of Parliament the Commons committees had too much work right here in Ottawa to permit much junketing. The estimates committee travelled to Toronto and Montreal and inspected plants working on defence orders—mainly aircraft and warships. Another group inspected the St. Lawrence Seaway.

The Tory members of the mines, forests and waters committee tried to arrange a post-session junket to Fort Churchill, the Northwest Territories and the Yukon. They gave up when the session stretched into September.

The government is conscious that junketing can be construed by political opponents and by the paying public as a waste of money. The government also is economy-minded in areas where spending is not part of a grand plan to develop resources or provide jobs or placate voters.

There was a recent example of this, when the Department of External Affairs asked Defence Minister Peakes for an airplane to junket visiting NATO journalists around the country. Peakes didn't refuse—but he did say that it would cost External Affairs $28,000 to charter an RCAF plane. The department of diplomacy diplomatically dropped the idea.

Nevertheless, despite such evidences of governmental tight-fistedness, there is increasing pressure for more parliamentary junketing. And the government may well come around, realizing that money spent on any reasonable junket will help forestall frustration and dissatisfaction among its own MPs.

OF GREGORY CLARK

ART has become art. That is the suggestion of a holidayer just home from Europe, where he attended the Brussels Fair.

Started by the paintings, sculpture and other manifestations of art he saw there in the various national pavilions, he took time out in London and Paris to look in on the most reputable art shows being held.

"Art, not art," he says. "The function of modern painting and sculpture is to attract attention to the artist, not to the art. It is a form of self-expression that moves into the area of self-assertion and ends up as mere exhibitionism. It is the preposterous proposition that the artist is more important than his art. That's what comes, I suppose, of all this socialistic trend of the past half-century, the welfare state, the new deal. A man is more important than his work. You cannot look at most of the prize-winning paintings in these shows without instantly thinking, first, not of the painting but of who the Sam Hill painted it. The painter oozes out of the paint, and not much else.

"The tragic thing is, they have run out of ideas. All modern art looks the same. It is as if all our popular singers were singing the same song, but each in his own style. Man, wouldn't that be tiresome?"

"Well, it is tiresome."

Disarmament

The West's New Move

By W. N. EWER, from London

TWO new proposals which the Western powers have made to Russia are closely linked to each other.

One is an Anglo-American proposal to start negotiations at the end of October to try to agree on a control system which would make possible the suspension of nuclear tests, and to suspend tests for 12 months in any event, while negotiations are going on.

The other is an Anglo-Franco-American proposal to resume in Moscow the talks on preparations for a "summit" meeting which have been in suspense since the end of May.

The link between the two is that both are largely inspired by the desire of the Western powers to get disarmament talks started again. These have been in suspense since the Russians first brought the work of the five-power disarmament subcommittee to a dead stop last August, and followed this by refusing to participate in the work of the new Disarmament Commission set up by the United Nations Assembly last November.

The Anglo-American declarations on the cessation of tests not only envisage the first 12 months being used for the working out of a control system on the lines which the experts meeting in Geneva agreed to be technically possible and effective. They also suggested that the year shall be used for an attempt to secure the adoption and execution of measures of real disarmament.

The British declaration expresses the hope that "the precedent of expert discussion established by the Geneva Conference may be followed in other fields."

This idea of passing the purely technical problems of the various aspects of disarmament to experts was put forward by Mr. Selwyn Lloyd in the Disarmament Subcommittee last year. It was then rejected out of hand by the Soviet delegation. But now in the field of nuclear tests it has been not only accepted but successfully carried into effect. The Soviet government seems to have accepted it in principle in the fields of safeguards against the possibility of surprise attacks. There is clearly room for its further and useful application.

This, then, is one Western proposal.

The other is for the resumption of "pre-summit" preparatory talks in Moscow. The position with regard to those is a curious one.

On May 31, the Western ambassadors handed Mr. Gromyko a proposal designed to break the deadlock which had developed in an attempt to agree on an agenda for the preliminary meeting of foreign ministers. The Soviet Foreign Minister promised an early reply, but none has ever been received. Nor has any further meeting been held.

In new notes of August 23 the Western governments regretted that, in this way, "preparatory discussions in Moscow are at a standstill." They proposed a resumption.

The link between this and the proposal for negotiations on a nuclear test agreement is this. Though the scope of the summit meeting would be far wider, there is an agreement by both sides that it would include the problems of disarmament, which would indeed be one of the major questions for discussion by heads of government.

One may recall that already last December the NATO governments had proposed a meeting of foreign ministers to consider ways and means of breaking the disarmament deadlock. That proposal was, as it were, overtaken and overlaid by Mr. Bulganin's call for a full-scale meeting of heads of government.

But the breaking of the disarmament deadlock, whether by a summit meeting or by a meeting of foreign ministers, or by any other means, has remained the primary objective of the Western powers.

Now they have in these two communications taken the initiative again.

To sum it up, they are proposing: (1) Negotiations for an agreement on the suspension of nuclear tests under effective international control. (2) The use of these negotiations to "facilitate early negotiations on the measures of disarmament." (3) Extending "the precedent of expert discussion established by the Geneva Conference" to other fields of effective international control.

(4) The resumption of pre-summit talks in Moscow in which disarmament problems have a prominent place.

Those four proposals amount to a program for a new effort to break the year-old deadlock. Nor does there seem to be anything in it to which the Soviet government can reasonably take exception.

Letters to the Editor

Blind Unionists

In a recent issue of your valuable paper, I note a letter signed B. P. Johnson, captioned "Riders and Unionists" which starts: "Today, corporations, with annual profits mounting each year, have declared war on trade unions, now that the reserve army of unemployed is heavy. The right-to-work law is proving to be right-to-scab law."

Being a retired farmer, approximately 80 years of age, and 56 of them spent in Canada, I would ask what foundation has Mr. Johnson to write such rubbish — with an Atlantic line of CNR boats idle for over a year, gathering nothing but barnacles on their bottoms; with the products of other countries such as small European caps, kitchen-rubber boots with a Hong Kong label stamped; B.C. Centennial egg-timers from Japan, binoculars, cameras, etc., from Germany or Japan, and many other items, our factories unable to supply goods we need either because costs are too high or factories closed because of strikes.

In early June, 1955, after a lengthy automobile strike at Ford and General Motors, Edsel Ford and Walter Reuther met to endeavor to iron out grievances. Edsel Ford had an ace up his sleeve to use if compelled, this being an offer of Ford shares at 50¢ of market value to induce workers' co-operation. Did Reuther grab that offer? Not on your life, but agreement was attained to suit him when he received a guaranteed annual pay clause. To show how one-sided, no clause binds the workers to supply an equivalent value in labor rendered.

Since that time, the UAW have worked with no contract, and considering the influx of European cars which so flood this western continent, if the union leaders have a grain of what is needed, they should change their tactics entirely, for they are not in the driver's seat.

Canada's biggest handicap to industry and prosperity is the dominating influence of the American Federation of Labor and acting like the tail on a dog from orders of Hoffa, Beck and all the ruthless intimidation used by them.

I hope the scales fall from our eyes before it is too late, for no wonder Khrushchev is so damned confident. Enough said, for I hate to write like this.

Drivers' Vision

In a news item in the papers some time ago, Dr. Derek Simpson, in Vancouver, questioned driver tests and recommended more lenient standards of vision than those presently demanded for drivers in B.C.

My experience as a driver with short-sighted eyes should prove his case. I was born with short-sighted eyes and with the best glasses I could get I was never able to attain 20-40 vision.

From 1918 to 1939, when I had my first driver's test, I drove trucks and cars in daylight hours at speeds allowed on roads, but never travelled more than 35 miles per hour at night. In that time I drove more than 100,000 miles without getting into trouble.

In 1939 I got new glasses which give me vision of about 20-45. I drove with these glasses until March of this year and at that time had vision of 20-60 with them. In these years I drove at speeds the same as before, and travelled 190,000 miles, 40,000 of those miles being on trips across Canada and the U.S.A.

In these years I got warned in two school zones on Vancouver Island and in Vancouver on playground zone. I have new glasses now which give me vision of 20-50, and with my experience in driving I think I am a safer and better driver than at any time in the past years.

millan government that any move to limit immigration of non-whites into Britain "will do irreparable damage to Commonwealth unity and mutual understanding."

The protest bluntly rejected suggestions that one way of combating race violence here would be to cut down the number of migrants.

The protest came in the middle of a flurry of conferences among government officials, alarmed over the sudden spread of racial violence in London. There have also been outbreaks in Nottingham.

Navy's Two-Year Bill $888,000 for Rum

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government spent at least $918,000 on liquor purchases in the last two years, a parliamentary return shows.

Most of the total—$887,890—was spent on rum for Royal Canadian Navy daily rations. Remainder was mainly for receptions and medicinal purposes.

CAMPBELL RIVER — Two visitors from Bay City, Mich., caused considerable commotion here Thursday when they stayed out in a busy waterway nearly all night after hooking two big salmon.

Before Dr. and Mrs. L. Ziliak were located about 10 miles north of this Vancouver Island village, the air force, police, and all local shipping knew about them.

The alarm was sounded by another Bay City couple, Dr. and Mrs. B. Axline, who called RCMP after their friends had not returned to camp at 10:30 p.m. Thursday.

A federal fisheries boat found the "lost" couple. Mrs. Ziliak had just landed her fish, a 52-pounder, and gladly went aboard the rescue boat.

Hunting Restrictions Lifted for Interior

Hunting restrictions in the Kamloops, Shuswap, Quesnel, Williams Lake, Lillooet and Merritt districts, Areas 13, 14 and 15, were lifted Friday, it was announced by Recreation and Conservation Minister Earle C. Westwood.

The only restrictions still in effect in B.C. are in Areas 6, 7, 8 and 9, along the south central border of the province.

Mr. Westwood said he expects those restrictions to be lifted shortly.

Speaking Briefly

All-Foreign Semis

Actually, it must be a bit embarrassing.

United States Lawn Tennis Association officials today are faced with a rather unpleasant situation—there's not a single American left in the semifinals of the U.S. national tournament at Forest Hills, N.Y.

Malcolm Anderson, a raw-boned Aussie from Queensland, disposed of the last of them, Dick Savitt, to make the first all-foreign men's singles semifinals in the 77 years of the championship.

Ulf Schmidt, a strapping young Swede, disposed of the only other American left, Herb Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., 7-5, 8-6, 8-6.

Anderson goes against Schmidt today and Wimbledon artist Ashley Cooper faces fellow Australian and Davis Cup teammate and doubles partner Neale Fraser.

Anderson had a marathon set to start with but won 18-16 then it went 6-1, 3-6, 6-3 over Savitt.

Althea Gibson and Mrs. Beverly Fleitz meet in one women's semi-final today and Darlene Hard plays Jeanne Arth in the other.

More tennis news: U.S. Davis Cup squad of 12 men named yesterday includes Alex Olmedo of Peru and an unknown from the west coast, Don Kierbow.

Others are Earl Buchholz, Chris Crawford, John Douglas, John Cranston, Herb Flam, Sam Giammalva, Barry MacKay, Budge Patty, Ham Richardson and Bill Quillian.

Kierbow has never won a major title although he defeated Whitney Reed and Herb Flam and won the Ojai, Calif. tournament last April.

PAUL MASNICK, former Montreal chatter, now a free agent, may sign with New Westminster Royals for the coming Western Hockey League season. Edmonton Eskimos have run into an snag in an attempt to sign import, halfback Bob Stranksy from San Francisco on a lend-lease basis.

Seems Winnipeg has him on their negotiation list. . . . Run-ner Herb Elliott of Australia Friday night in Oslo ran the 1,500 metres in 3:37.4, second fastest time ever for the metric mile. His mark has been exceeded only by his sensational 3:36.0 at Göteborg, Sweden, last Saturday.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA's soccer coach resigned in a huff following Russia's 2-1 victory over his team.

HEIC CAPOZZI, B.C. Lions' general manager, says some new players may arrive on the scene soon to help the beleaguered Leos. . . . Detroit Tigers are reported to be in favor of Washington Senators moving to Minneapolis. . . . Montreal Canadiens have signed defenceman Jean Guy Talbot. . . . Chicago boxing promoter Jack Begun says he will offer Virgil Atkins and Carmen Basilio $250,000 for a welterweight title bout. . . . Mike Agostini, Vancouver, won a 100-metre dash against top European competition in 10.3 seconds. . . . Vim evened the score with the yacht Columbia in their trial series to see who opposes England's Sceptre for the America's Cup Sept. 20.

EDDIE ARCARO has been re-elected president of the Jockeys' Guild for a two-year term. . . . Dutch girl relay swimmers set a world record in the 400-metre medley with a time of 4:52.9, 1.1 seconds better than the mark held by Britain. . . . Federal game agents and state wardens striking simultaneously at dawn Friday arrested 95 persons in Wisconsin, Michigan and Illinois on charges of illegal trafficking in migratory waterfowl. They had been selling the birds to restaurants and night clubs.

Lewis Gains Most

REGINA (CP) — Leo Lewis, fleet halfback with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, is the early ground-gaining leader in the Western Interprovincial Football Union, according to statistics released by Bill Hawrylak of Regina, chief WIF statistician.

Lewis shows a net gain of 449 yards on 63 carries to take a narrow lead over Edmonton Eskimo fullback Johnny Bright. Bright has netted 421 yards in 58 carries.

Statistics cover all games to date with Winnipeg and British Columbia Lions each having played five games, and Edmonton, Saskatchewan Roughriders and Calgary Stampeders four apiece.

GILCHRIST THIRD Third place is held by Saskatchewan's Cookie Gilchrist who has netted 331 yards in 48 carries.

Calgary's Chuck Holloway is the leading pass receiver, catching 21 of 27 aerials for 374 yards. B.C.'s Paul Cameron has caught 20 of 22 for 339 yards.

Saskatchewan's Jack Hill owns the best average pass, latching onto 10 of 12 for 258 yards for an average gain of 25.8 yards. Teammate Ken Carpenter is next in line with an 18.8 average, while Holloway is averaging 17.8 yards.

Saskatchewan's Frank Tripucka leads the passers with the top average of 10.1 yards per pass. Edmonton's Jackie Duncan and Calgary's Maury Duncan are averaging 10 yards apiece.

Duncan has the best completion percentage, hitting on 25 of 34 passes for a glossy .735 per cent.

BEST GAINERS In team statistics, Winnipeg leads the way with a total of 2,030 net yards from scrimmage. Edmonton has netted a rushing and passing total of 1,512 yards. Calgary 1,464. B.C. 1,471 and Saskatchewan 1,383.

In rushing, the Bombers are tops with a net of 1,498 yards. Riders have netted 819. Eskis 711, Stamps 527 and Lions 453.

Lions have netted 1,018 yards in the air. Stamps 937, Eskis 801, Riders 564 and Bombers 532.

Bombers also lead in total first downs with 112, in punting average at 45.1 yards per kick.

Hazel Jamison of Edmonton in yesterday's ladies' final.

NEVER WON Bigelow, a perennial medalist and runner-up, has never won the Totem journey but is a slight favorite to turn the trick today and bring the silver Totem Pole Trophy back to the Victoria Golf Club trophy room after almost a year's absence.

Verley won the title last year, but when he was transferred to Vancouver the trophy was shifted to Vancouver's Point Grey club.

In yesterday's semi-finals, Bigelow beat Murray Marsh, Jr. of Seattle, 3 and 2, after being one down at the turn. Verley, downed medalist Don Cawley of Seattle, 3 and 1.

Ex-Totem champ Peter Bentley of Vancouver beat Bigelow yesterday in a playoff for runner-up spot in the qualifying round, where both shot 73's.

Mrs. H. Husband brought one title to Victoria yesterday. She took the ladies' consolation championship by edging Miss Marnie McMillan of Saskatoon, two up. E. A. Christensen of Edmonton beat R. Stokes of Victoria in the second men's flight.

Mrs. Jamison, a member of this year's Alberta ladies' team, shot steady, near-par golf to beat Mrs. Todd and bring the ladies' Totem Pole Trophy back to Edmonton after an absence of 22 years. Edmonton golfers have won the event only three times in 28 years.

SHAKY START Mrs. Todd, one of Victoria's outstanding players, appeared off form yesterday and never recovered from a shaky start.

Mrs. Jamison won the first four holes to take command and was four up at the turn. She won the 10th, but Mrs. Todd scrapped back to take the 11th and the 12th was halved.

However, Mrs. Jamison went five up again on the long 13th hole and won the championship when the 14th hole was halved.

Baseball Series All Tied, 2-2

By GARTH WILTON

Wakeman & Trimble, showing a sharp reversal of form at the plate, exploded for 14 hits last night to defeat Eagles, 4-3, and square their best-of-five Victoria Senior Amateur League final at two games apiece.

Deciding game of the series will be played today at 2 p.m. at Royal Athletic Park.

Held to three hits Thursday night, Wakeman & Trimble struck for four runs in the first three innings last night against the offerings of righthander Steve Bishop, who started for the losers.

Bishop, after being rapped for eight hits in the first three innings, settled down to pitch four innings of shutout ball. But Eagles ran into a run famine.

George Brice, a hard-throwing righthander, spun a sparkling four-hitter for Wakeman & Trimble, pitching his way out of serious trouble several times in the late innings.

He walked 12 and hit one batter but chalked up 16 strikeouts to cut over promising rallies and hold Eagles to three runs. Eagles stranded 16 baserunners, leaving the bases loaded in three innings.

Lyle Corneil enjoyed a big night at the plate for Wakeman & Trimble, smacking a pair of long doubles and a home run in five trips to the plate. Ron Karademis, playing with a broken finger, lashed three solid singles in five trips and John Catterall went two for four, clubbing a pair of singles.

Gary Bishop was the only Eagle batter able to solve Brice, connecting for three of their four hits in four tries. Art Worthing, who relieve Steve Bishop in the eighth, got the other hit.

Taylor's success made up for the comparatively bad showing of Harvie Ward, two-time U.S. champion, who had to work hard for an even break in his matches.

$400,000 Park Plan Developed by Saanich

Cadboro Bay May Get Huge Recreation Area

By TED SHACKLEFORD

Detailed plans for the development of a 17-acre, $400,000 land-sea park at Cadboro Bay will be considered at Tuesday night's meeting of Saanich parks committee.

The plan calls for a swimming pool, tennis courts, a water slide, a playground, and a parking area. The park will be developed on a 17-acre site at Cadboro Bay, which is currently a parking area for the Cadboro Bay Hotel. The plan was developed by the Saanich parks committee, which is headed by Mr. J. H. Smith. The committee is currently reviewing the plan and will make recommendations to the Saanich council at their meeting on Tuesday night. The estimated cost of the park is $400,000. The park is expected to be completed within two years.

Cutted School Reopens Soon

Mrs. M. Thomas, whose Southlands private school in Langford burned to the ground Sunday, hopes to reopen the school Wednesday on a new site. A fund started when it was learned the school and equipment were not insured has raised between $100 and $200 to date. Donations of furniture, bedding, an electric stove and household utensils have been promised, along with labor to build a new school.

Employment In City Dips Again

The unemployment rate in Victoria last week was 11.1 per cent, down from 11.5 per cent the week before, but still above the national average of 10.1 per cent. The city's unemployment rate was 11.1 per cent, compared with 10.1 per cent for the province and 10.1 per cent for the nation. The city's unemployment rate was 11.1 per cent, compared with 10.1 per cent for the province and 10.1 per cent for the nation.

Blossoms Here Come Big

Flower show comes big in Victoria, the city of flowers, as demonstrated by W. J. Ryan, president of the Victoria Horticultural Society, at the society's annual flower show, in the lower section of the Victoria Convention Centre. The show is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. today. The show is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. today. The show is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. today.

Plan Too Ambitious

The plan is too ambitious for Saanich, according to some members of the Saanich parks committee. They feel that the $400,000 cost is too high for a park of this size. They also feel that the plan is too ambitious for the city's current budget. They feel that the plan is too ambitious for the city's current budget. They feel that the plan is too ambitious for the city's current budget.

Outstanding Blooms at Show

Thousands of flowers, including roses, carnations, and chrysanthemums, are on display at the Victoria Horticultural Society's annual flower show. The show is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. today. The show is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. today. The show is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. today.

Body Dumped on Beach at Vancouver

VANCOUVER—The body of Mrs. Nellie Pickles, aged about 65, was found Friday on a Point Grey beach. Police said a drag mark which could have been made by heels of her shoes indicated the body had been dumped on the beach.

There were no marks on the body, which was still adorned with earrings and other jewelry. A cash purse inside the woman's hand bag, found 60 feet from the body, was empty.

OTTAWA—Margaret Meagher, 47, school teacher turned diplomat, was appointed first woman ambassador. She steps up from charge d'affaires at the Canadian Embassy in Israel to be ambassador.

LONDON—An enterprising burglar locked the enterprising Duke of Bedford in his bedroom. The Duke, Barnum of the blue-bloods, heard the key turn and scrambled for the phone. The burglar, having pocketed a WINDSOR, Ont. — A 50-year-old native of Czechoslovakia who would neither swear nor affirm allegiance to the Queen or Canada Friday was refused his Canadian citizenship. Paul Kaman said he was unable to do either because of his religious beliefs. He is a member of the Apostolic Church.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — A city judge fined Rev. Martin Luther King $14 for refusing to obey an officer and when the Negro leader refused to pay the fine Police Commissioner Clyde Sellers paid it for him so he would not go to jail a "martyr."

VANCOUVER — A 20-year-old Sons of Freedom-Doukhobor youth injured in an explosion near Kelowna last month, has had his right eye removed here. Harry Bojey's other eye still has some vision.

WESTPORT, Wash. — Two Canadians who plan to paddle their 17-foot kayak from Vancouver to South America arrived here safely on another leg of the journey. Peter Edwards and John Braggins were to push off for Willapa Bay today.

SEATTLE — A Seattle high school youth, Dennis Dehart, 17, was in critical condition from a gunshot wound received while playing "Russian Roulette."

PORTO D'ISCHIA, Italy — Amelia Eden, 25, niece of Sir Anthony Eden, will be married here Sunday in a Roman Catholic Church. The girl, a member of the Church of England, will marry Giovanni Borrelli, a 30-year-old ferryboat mechanic. She plans to become a Roman Catholic.
